Topic is locked. This simple tutorial will explain how to use “Laravel Mix” to compile and bundle ReactJs projects. This helps to reduce the time to create and build ReactJs applications, by using a simpler and more flexible solution. Before starting, you need to install the key dependencies of Laravel Mix.

yarn add --dev react-scripts-ts

Laravel Mix

The Mix is a tool for the compilation of webpack bundles. Mix provides an “all in one” solution to the compilation and bundling of your front-end files. It leverages webpack-stream to handle the input/output of the compilation. Webpack provides a standardized “setup” for this compilation.

Mix takes the generated webpack configuration, plus your bootstrap and plugins, and ensures that all necessary files are present and configured in a way that maximizes cross-browser compatibility. You no longer have to build everything from scratch. Mix enables you to use the same webpack configuration that is already being used on your server when developing your project.

Laravel Mix Examples

This tutorial will explain how to use “Laravel Mix” to compile and bundle ReactJs projects.

1. Create a new Laravel project Start with a fresh Laravel application. For this tutorial, I will use VueJs, but this can be easily adapted to any other framework.

npx laravel new laravel --auth

public cd laravel 2. Install the dependencies Install some dependencies: yarn
add --dev npm install @types/node @types/lodash bluebird webpack webpack-stream babel-loader 3.

Create our mix.js file The following is the mix.js file we will use to compile our ReactJs application. const path = require('path'); const { mix } = require('laravel-mix');
mix.js('./app/build/js/app.js',

---

'public/js/main.js'); It is very important that we add a default export:

mix.js('resources/js/app.js', 'public/js/app.js');

All of our files must be loaded for the webpack to work. This ensures that your files do not end up in a broken state if you accidentally delete one of your build files. 4. Create an app.js file As we will learn in the next tutorial, the app.js is used to import all our ReactJs components in the project.

---

//./resources/js/app.js export default { main: './main.js' };
5. Create a main.js file In the main.js file, we will explain how to import all our ReactJs components.
