OneDrive - Upload, Share & Access Your PC's Online Files OneDrive is a cloud-based file hosting service provided by Microsoft. It is essentially a paid-for Microsoft-branded Google Drive. The service is accessible from Windows 8 and Windows 10 devices and allows the user to create, download, edit and view files that are stored online from their device. For the user it allows them to save files online and access them later in other devices such as their laptops or tablets. It also allows them to share files and folders to other devices such as an Android phone or PC with Windows

8. If the user has OneDrive, they can access their photos and other files in a cloud-based location from their device. It is recommended to get an account from the store as it gives the user better options. This guide will take you through the steps required to create a free account and access your files from OneDrive. Note: All the features can be accessed by selecting the OneDrive icon from the Start menu. If you don't have OneDrive, you can still access your files from the Microsoft website.

New Account Setup

If you haven't created a OneDrive account yet, you can do it through the Windows Store or the browser. Both will take you to the Microsoft website which has a simple sign-up process. You will need your email address as well as a username and password. If you don't want to receive promotional emails from Microsoft, you can choose to opt out of this process. You will be taken to the Microsoft website where you will need to enter your email address and confirm your information. It is very important that you make sure the correct email address is used to avoid any future problems. Once you have entered all the required information you need to agree to the terms and conditions. This will allow Microsoft to access your email address and store it securely on their servers. The site will then redirect you back to your device where you can continue to access the service. If you are signed in to Windows Live, you will receive a message that you need to restart your computer. This is to ensure that the new account details are correctly stored. If you have signed out of Windows Live, you need to sign in again before you can access the OneDrive website. OneDrive Home You can access OneDrive from the Start menu. Click on the OneDrive icon to see the home screen. From here, you can upload, download and share files.
